Letter To The Editor

To the Editor and Readers:

A walk through the Court House building in Appomattox this week prompts me to urge the Board of Supervisors and the county taxpayers, whom they represent, to make every possible effort to correct certain conditions before April 9.

We will be host to so many visitors and distinguished persons from every state in the nation that I feel we should repair leaks, replaster broken ceilings and repaint immediately in order to present an attractive appearance.

This is the year and this is the time to honor the past and the future, not with extravagance, but merely with the basic needs of our own Court House. If there is any doubt in your mind of the need for immediate action, I invite you to make a similar inspection.

Let us take pride in our County buildings as we do in our own homes.

Respectfully,
Mrs. Rachel F. Lawson

Artists Peculiar?

"Are artists peculiar?" Mrs. John E. Waldfish of Senry Oaks Farm on Route 460, guest speaker at the Woman's Club meeting Monday evening, talked about "odd balls" in the art world, and others who by their decorous behavior and dress appear as normal as apple pie.

Artists have not always been held in high esteem, said Mrs. Waldfish, who paints under her maiden name, Georgia Warren. "Today," she said "it is difficult for us to believe that prior to the 4th century B.C. the Greek Artist was considered merely a craftsman and his social position was one of the lowest. One of the reasons, she said, is that all manual labor was done by slaves, and since painters and sculptors had to tell physically, they were classed as only a little better than slaves.

Socrates, himself the son of a sculptor, held the practicing artist in very low esteem and both Plato and Aristotle assigned a place to the visual arts far below that of poetry and music.

Mrs. Waldfish spoke of the many famous artists, among them Vinci, Michael Angelo, and Titian, and Raphael. Michael Angelo completely revolted to a few friends but had only praises for those he cared little about. Raphael seems to have been endowed with all the social graces denied Michael Angelo, and Titian was an astute businessman who lived a life of luxury and success. De Vinci was beloved of his contemporaries, but exhibited many irregularities in cooking his lifetime.

Mrs. Waldfish traced career, beginning with the Pennsylvania Art when "we were in of an art revolution in try."

She said that Peter fellow student, was the boy that sat for the garb at the ranch were reared. Her class had of the previous year's —all nicely garbed. T ment brought about, if when a deb failed to f band and so enrolled "the arts."

She said that comme ists with whom she New York would today "Square." "We usually an artist who dresses probably a second rate ing to make up in ties for what he lacke ty."

Newspapers Are Important Says Local Scout

In the world we live in today it is very important to have a newspaper, radio, and TV so we can keep up with the current events. Recently the President was in the hospital and I was cold and a virus. Another current event was the illness and death of Sir Winston Churchill. Our newspapers, T V's and radios kept us aware of these events.

On January 26th, last week's meeting, we, Troop 322, visited the Times- Virginian, our local newspaper. I feel we learned many things which I missed in the minute of it. Thanks to Mr. Vaughan, Mr. Stimpson, Mrs. Robinson and Ray Lewis.

Parties Honor Bride-Elect

Several parties have been given honoring Miss Linda Bruce Gilliam, of Lynchburg, and fiance to Cecil Griffin Wooldridge will take place on Friday evening, the twenty-sixth of February, at Elon Baptist Church in Pamplin.

Saturday evening, the sixth of February, Mrs. Thomas Jamerson, Mrs. Alfred Jamerson, Miss Peggy Garrette, and Misses May and Kay Gilliam entertained the bride with a miscellaneous shower at the Pamplin School cafeteria.

Decorations followed a bridal theme, and approximately fifty friends and relatives of the honoree attended.

Friday evening, the twelfth of February, Mrs. Ruby Hamilton, Mrs. Jerry Smith, and Miss Peggy Wooldridge were hostesses for a bridal shower at the Evergreen Community Center.

A Valentine theme was carried out in the decorations and refreshments. Many friends and relatives from the community attended.

Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Wiley Gilliam and Mrs. Roland Campbell, of Lynchburg, honored Miss Gilliam with a luncheon at the Campbell home in Lynchburg.

An arrangement of white chrysanthemums and snapdragons centered the luncheon table. The guests included the mothers of the bride and the groom, the attendants of the bride, and several close friends and relatives.

The honoree was presented with a gift of silver.

Stamp Collectors May Wish To Use McLean Envelopes

Collectors desiring first day cancellations of the new Appomattox Stamp to be issued on April 9, may want to use an envelope picturing the McLean House.

Envelopes in both of the most popular sizes are being printed in the TIMES-VIRGINIAN office. The engraving of the McLean House, a sketch by local artist Ed Hopkinson, has been placed attractively on the envelope giving the sender space for his return address.

Kenwell Fescue seed will be available this fall to producers of certified seed. To the average farmer, it's 2 years away. In USDA test, this new variety has more palatebil- ance and maintains a better color during periods of dry weather. It is not as competitive as Ky. 31, but has good vigor and flowers 5 to 7 days before Ky. 31.

We will be reading more and more about reduced tillage of corn. This may be something many of you would like to try this year on a limited basis. The success of reduced tillage depends on soil type ,machinery available, weed control and management. There are five advantages: (1) lower operation cost, (2) less soil erosion, (3) reduced moisture loss, (4) reduce tendency to soil compaction, and (5) releases labor. The latter may not be important unless labor can be employed profitably elsewhere.

Artificial breeding of beef cattle is no cure-all. But it's coming on fast. You must decide if A.I. is for you. If you can follow the necessary management steps, it can be successful. If not, you will fail.
